

Accounting for Manufacturers

“As accountants have mentored a large number of local manufacturers through the start up phase of their business. We can help you with everything you need including your business structure, website, branding, payroll and software selection. This is obviously in addition to the usual small business compliance issues of GST, BAS, PAYG and Superannuation.”

Simon Jones

As a manufacturer, having an accountant who understands your manufacturing operations can provide significant benefits.

The truth is, running a manufacturing business in Australia is tough given the high labour costs and the need to manage inventory and costs, track customer orders, manage pending builds and assemblies plus identify which orders have been shipped. The volatility of the Australian dollar is another big issue if you import components or export your finished goods.

We have assisted a number of manufacturers through the various stages of their business life cycle and can provide you with a range of accounting, tax and business coaching services to support and grow your business. If you need help with job costing, pricing, break even analysis or management accounting services we can assist you. We also use industry benchmarks to compare your business performance against your peers to help you assess what is working in your manufacturing business and what needs working on.

We recognise the obstacles Australian manufacturers face and offer you strategies and practical business solutions.
